OUR PURPOSE

*Global collaboration to advance the inclusion of women &
under-represented minorities in Orthopaedic Surgery*

Welcome to the inaugural IODA Newsletter, an update of activities relevant to International Orthopaedic Diversity. At this time of great international upheaval resulting from Covid-19 and the recent death of George Floyd, uniting to advance diversity is imperative. IODA is seeking an arrangement with the Australian Orthopaedic Association to support a webpage/digital presence. In the interim we shall attempt to share information via newsletter. Please forward any information you would like distributed to this group to orthodiversityalliance@gmail.com

AAOS Diversity Advisory Board & the Orthopaedic Diversity Leadership Consortium (ODLC)

AJ Johnson, Chair of AAOS Diversity Advisory Board (DAB) has introduced the recently formed Orthopaedic Diversity Leadership Consortium to IODA. ODLC is a US group led by Erica Taylor, Assistant Professor of Orthopaedic Surgery at Duke University and colleagues. Thank you also AJ for introducing your DAB colleagues to IODA, we welcome their ideas and look forward to collaborating.

- Coleen Sabatini, Associate Professor, UCSF, Oakland
- Elizabeth Matzkin, Surgical Director, Women's Musculoskeletal Health, Brigham

Engaging with Orthopaedic Industry

The IODA membership is increasingly engaging with Orthopaedic Industry, many of whom have well-developed Diversity Strategies. There is considerable interest from Stryker, the AO Foundation, DePuy Synthes and other organisations to work with IODA through their global and national entities. Our Industry colleagues have enormous potential as powerful allies. Perhaps a coordinated approach from IODA would have the greatest effect.

Anyone who has seen the graphic video of George Floyd being pinned down and suffocated by a Minneapolis police officer cannot help but be horrified. There is no justification for this violence. This incident follows the recent shooting of Ahmad Arbery as he was jogging through a Georgia neighborhood, and the case of Christian Cooper who was wrongly accused of harassing a woman while he was bird watching in New York City. The detrimental effects these incidents have on our society and especially on Black communities, should not and cannot be underestimated. The Academy rejects the idea of any person regardless of race, religion, gender, creed or sexual orientation, and we strongly condemn what has recently occurred.

To our Academy members of color, we stand with you. Every human life matters to us. As the poet John Donne wrote:

"Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee."

We believe that although words are important, deeds matter most. I have always believed that our Academy and its leadership ought to look more like the population we serve. This is reflected in one of the three goals of our strategic plan: to ensure the culture and governance of AAOS's board and volunteer structure to become more strategic, innovative, and diverse.

A more diverse Academy will lead to better care for our patients, including those of color. Your Academy will respond to these episodes by demonstrating the very best of human nature and compassion. Values we continue to uphold as we face our future together.

Sincerely,

Joseph A. Bassi, Jr., MD, FRCOS
AAOS President

The current tensions in the United States have brought to the forefront the shameful effect of overt and insidious racism.

The impact of discrimination on Black and minority communities cannot be overlooked or underestimated; we at the BOA support our BAME surgeons, and believe in equality of all regardless of race, gender or religion.

We understand the importance of diversity across our leadership, reflecting the demographic of our members, and influencing the structure and strategies of our Council. A more diverse BOA, better serves our patients, and best supports our colleagues.

The issues highlighted this week do not solely effect our BAME members, but are a problem for us all; the Association is committed to words of action and deeds of change to best uphold our core values of caring for all patients and supporting all surgeons.
